Limerston Street

CHELSEA

4 Bedrooms, 3 Bathrooms
For 8 guests

This Chelsea townhouse layers traditional detail over a contemporary core – with a central courtyard garden at its heart.

Limerston Street sits in a sweet spot between two sides of London: the buzz of the King's Road to the south, the quieter cultural gravity of South Kensington to the north. Cafés and boutiques are close enough to be convenient, while the V&A, Natural History Museum and Hyde Park are a short walk away. Inside, living spaces are suited to socialising – open, airy and with a courtyard garden.

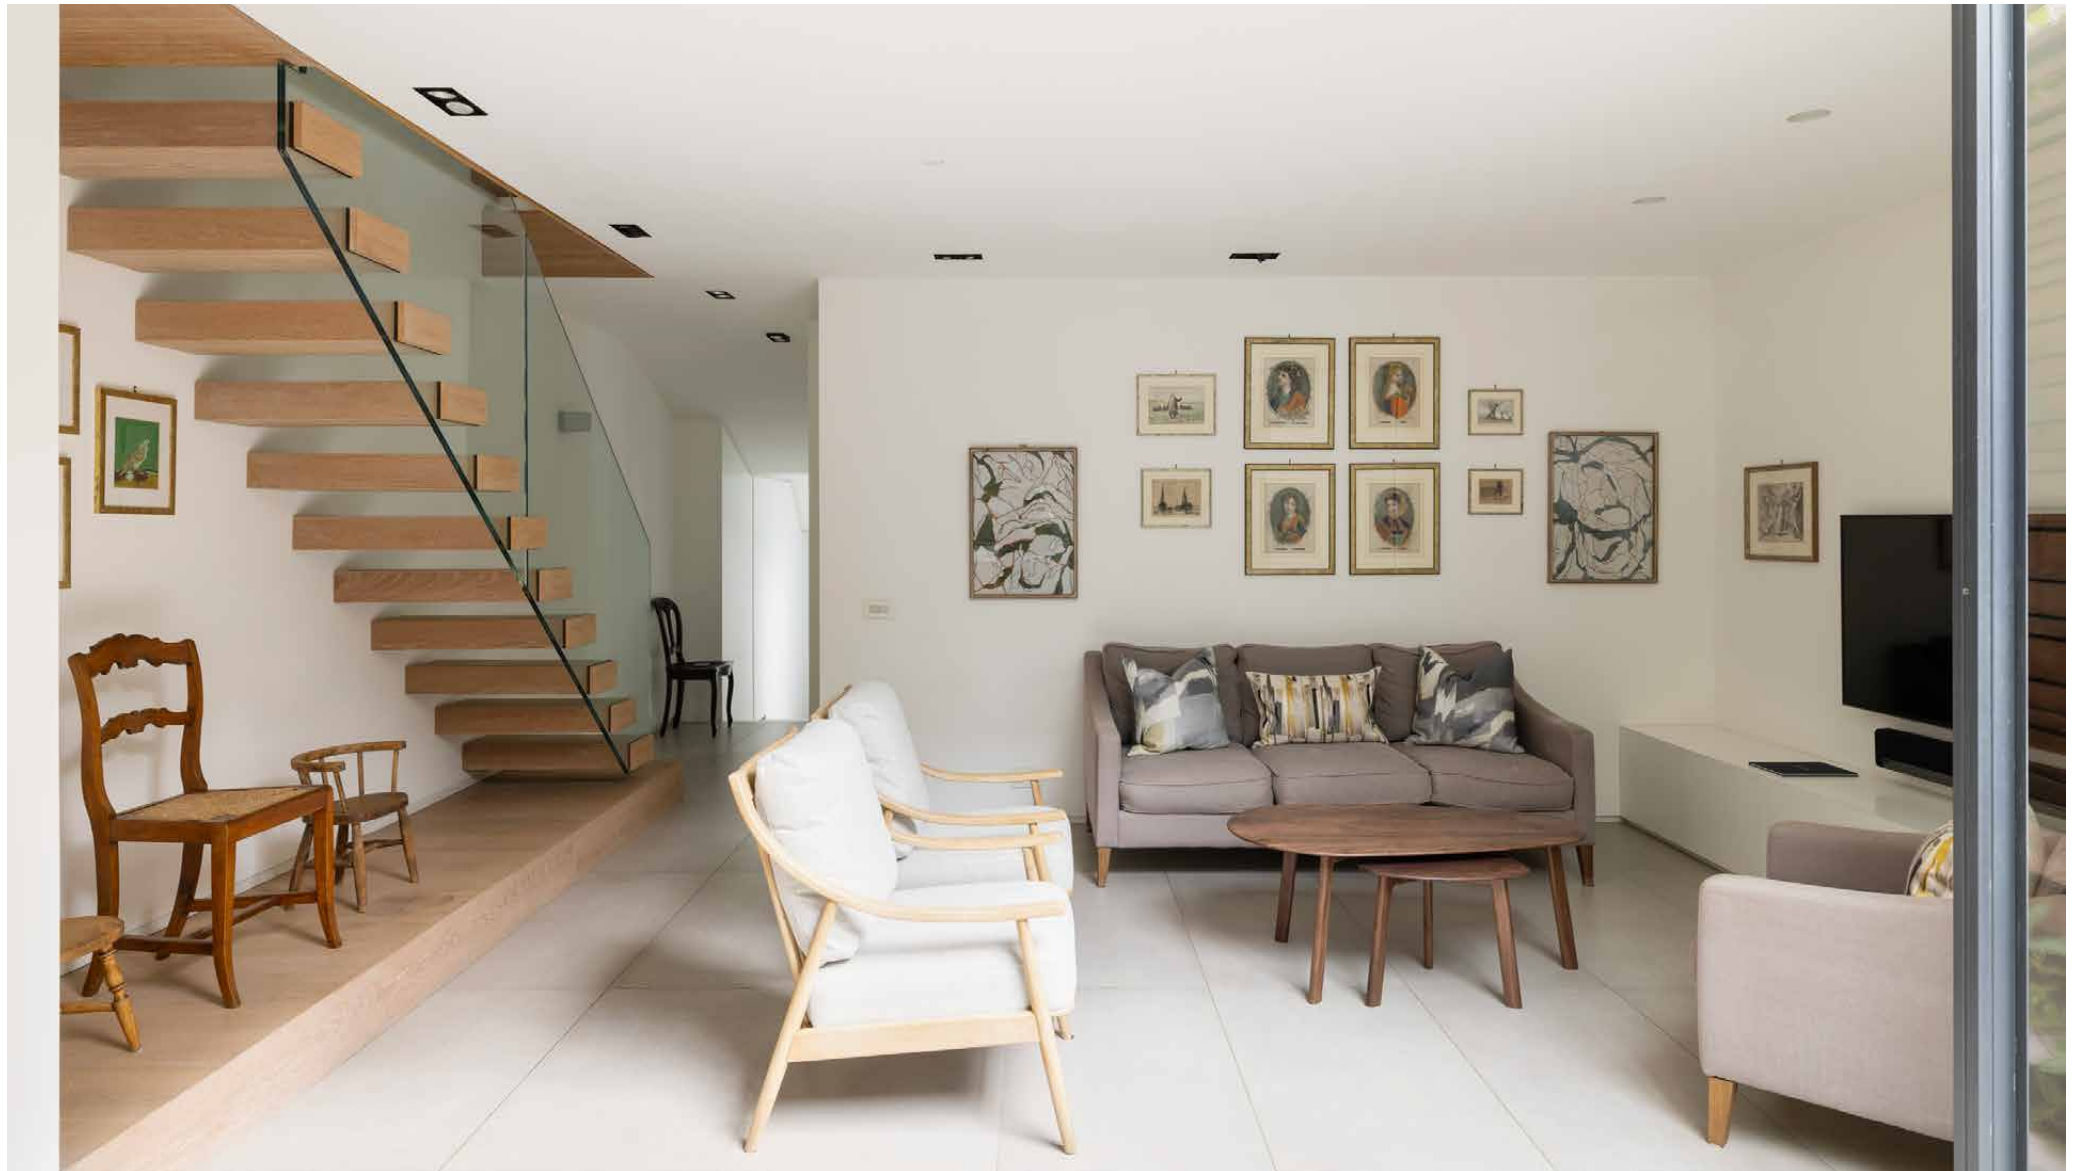

Kitchen & dining

Downstairs, the home is unexpectedly open – bright and centred on a courtyard that keeps the line between inside and outside blurred. The kitchen runs the full length of one wall, with appliances integrated so nothing interrupts the line. The dining area sits alongside: contained without feeling closed off, and lit well enough for use at any hour. When the doors are open, the courtyard becomes a natural continuation – easy to move between as the evening or weather shifts.

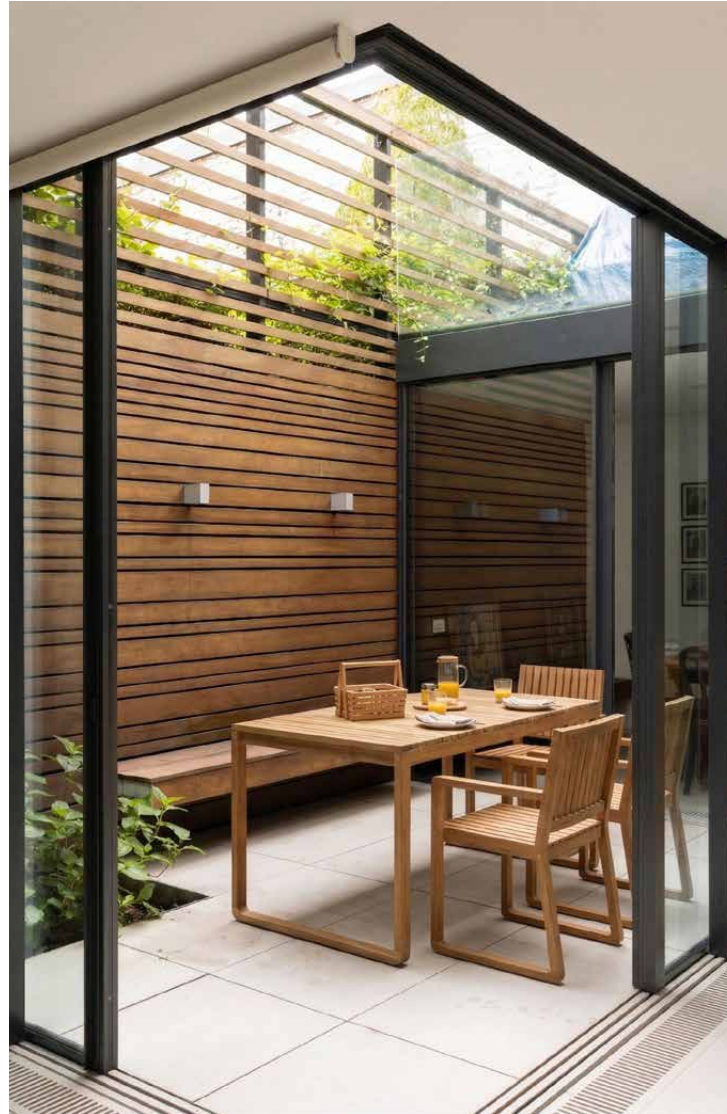

Outdoor space

Found at the heart of the lower ground level, the courtyard enjoys the same clarity as interiors – pristine paving, built-in seating and planting that spills down from above. When the weather allows, it's an effortless extension of the inside: just slide back the glass to drift between the two.

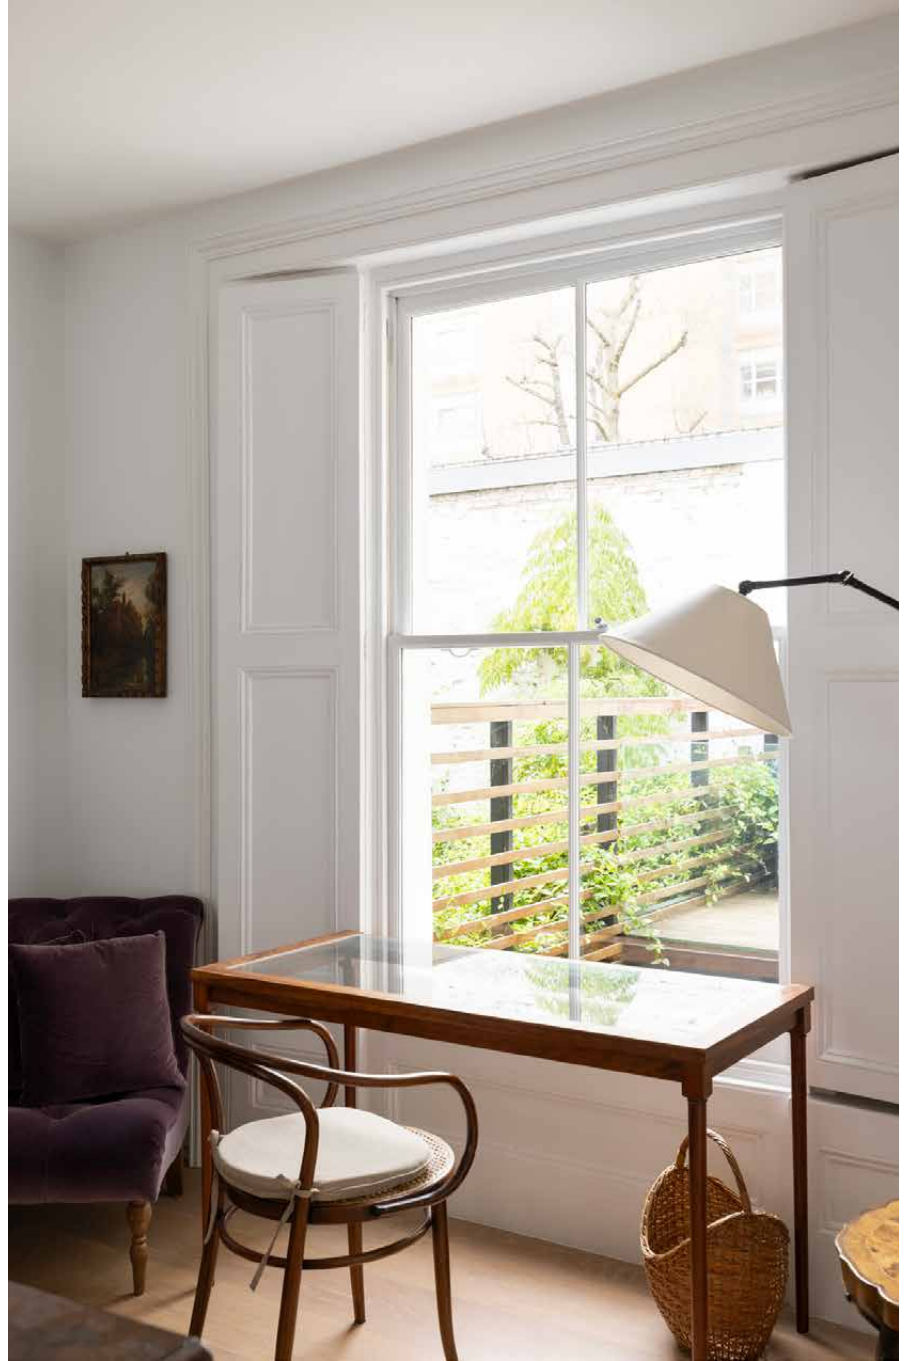

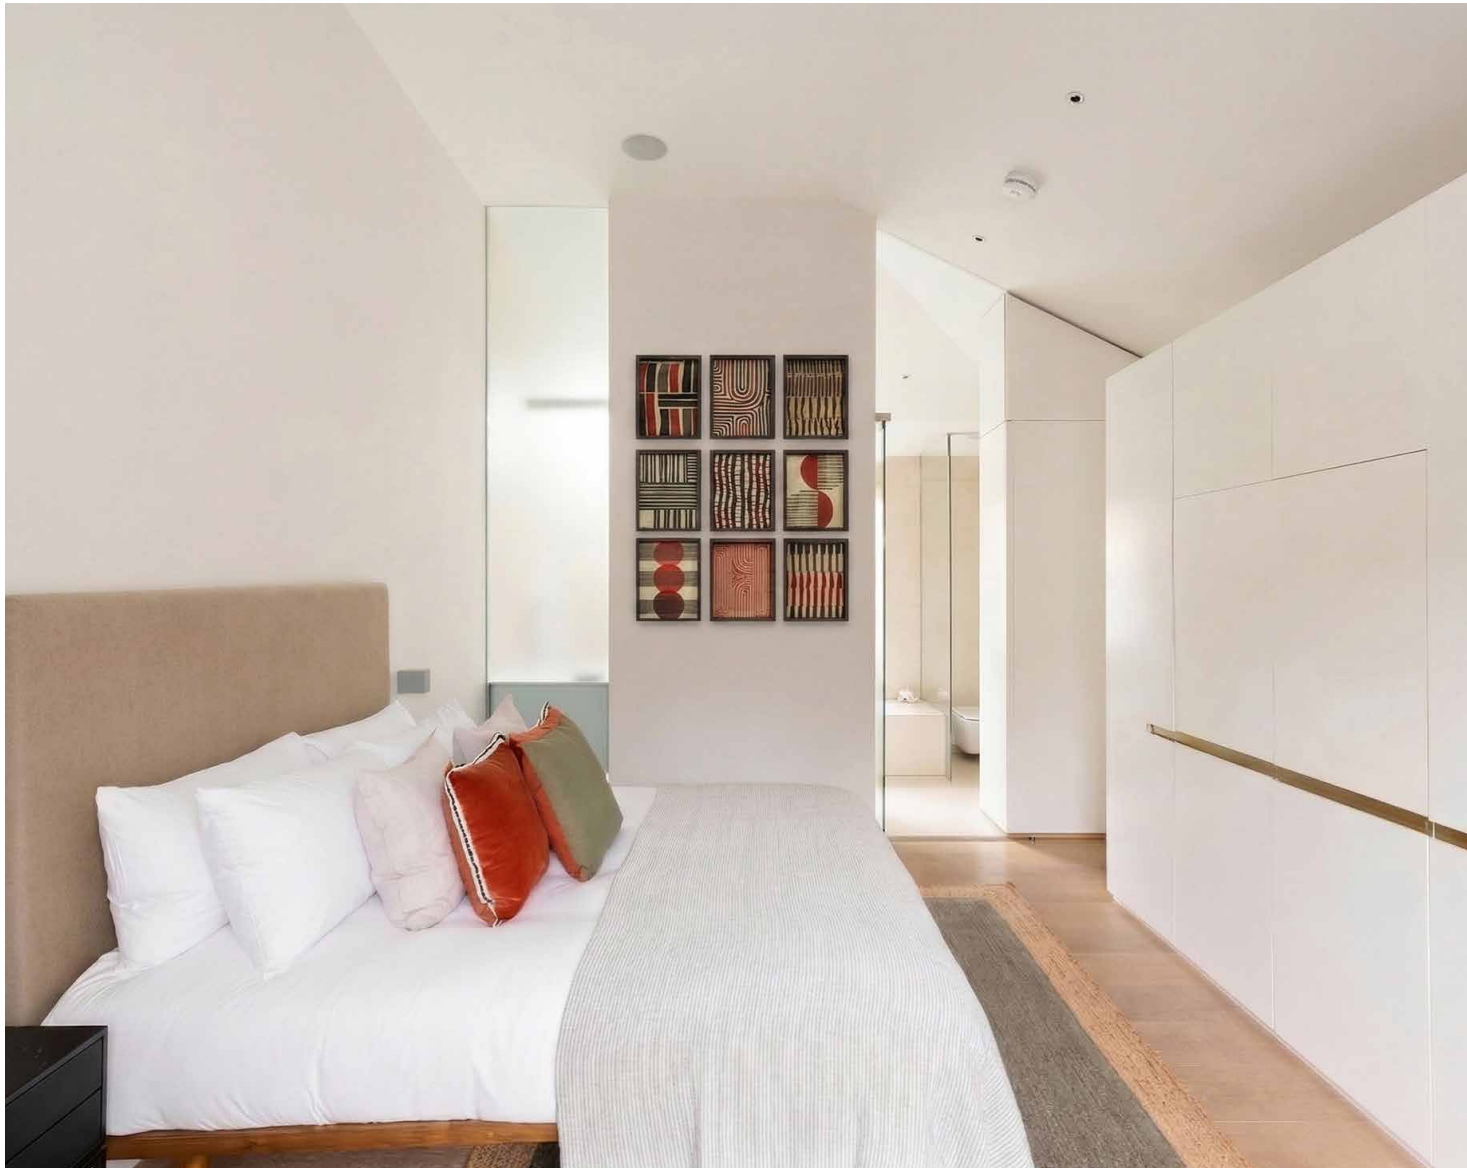

The living spaces

The main reception room is found on the ground floor, set up with distinct zones that shift depending on the day. Light eases in through a wide sash window, while an array of artwork and antiques give the room a quiet character. The feature fireplace anchors one side – a natural gathering point framed by low-slung armchairs and a velvet sofa. To the opposite end, a window-facing table looks out to the surroundings: a bright spot to work or whittle away an afternoon with a book.

Bedrooms & bathrooms

Upstairs, bedrooms are calm but considered. The principal suite impresses with a vaulted ceiling and run of integrated joinery that keeps the room uncluttered. Its en suite carries the same sensibility: a sophisticated set-up with a bathtub, dual vanity and separate shower.

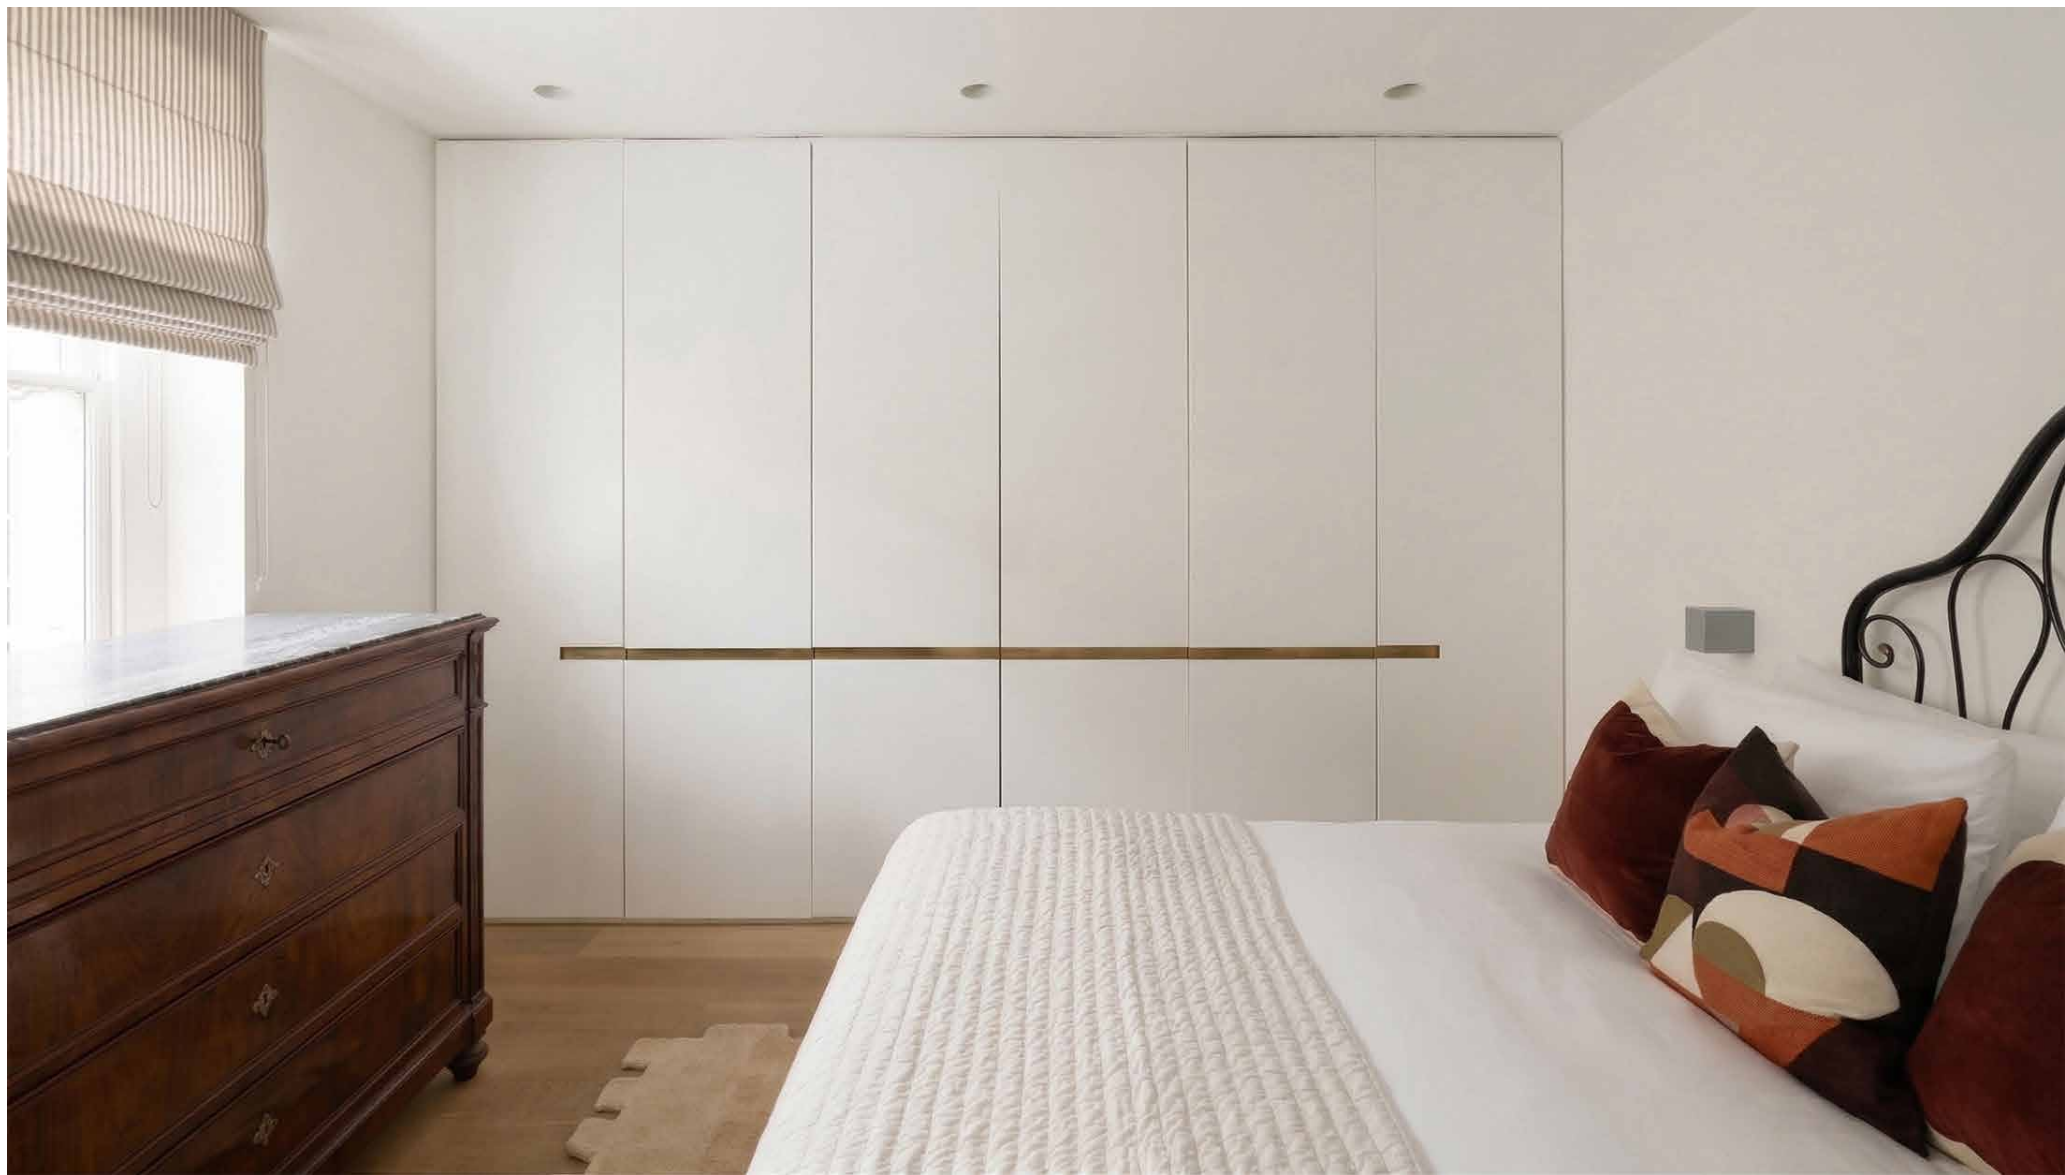

The remaining bedrooms follow a consistent thread. White walls, pared-back materials, and windows well placed to catch the light. One offers direct access to a private terrace – an enclosed setting with a view over the courtyard below.

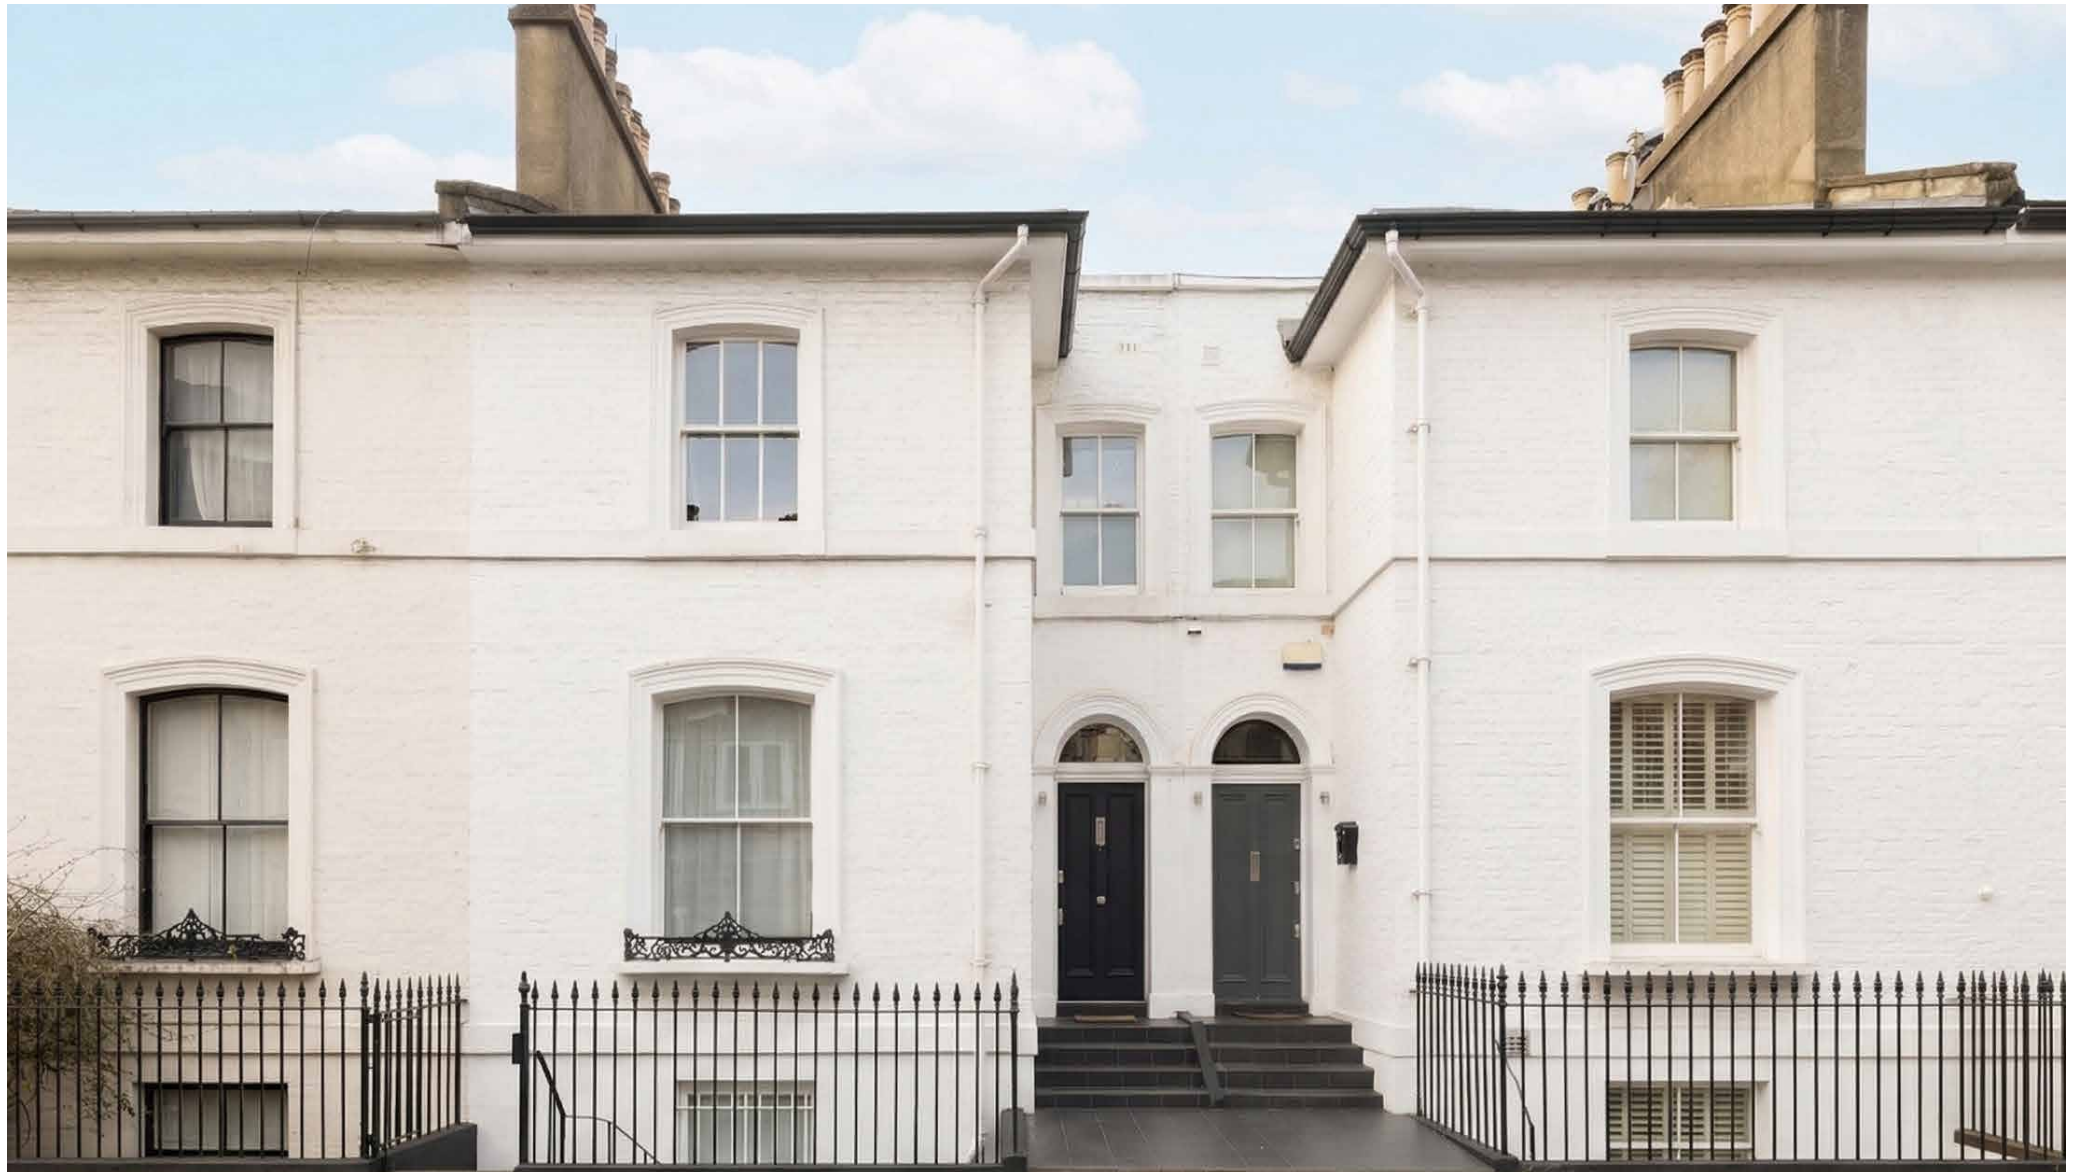

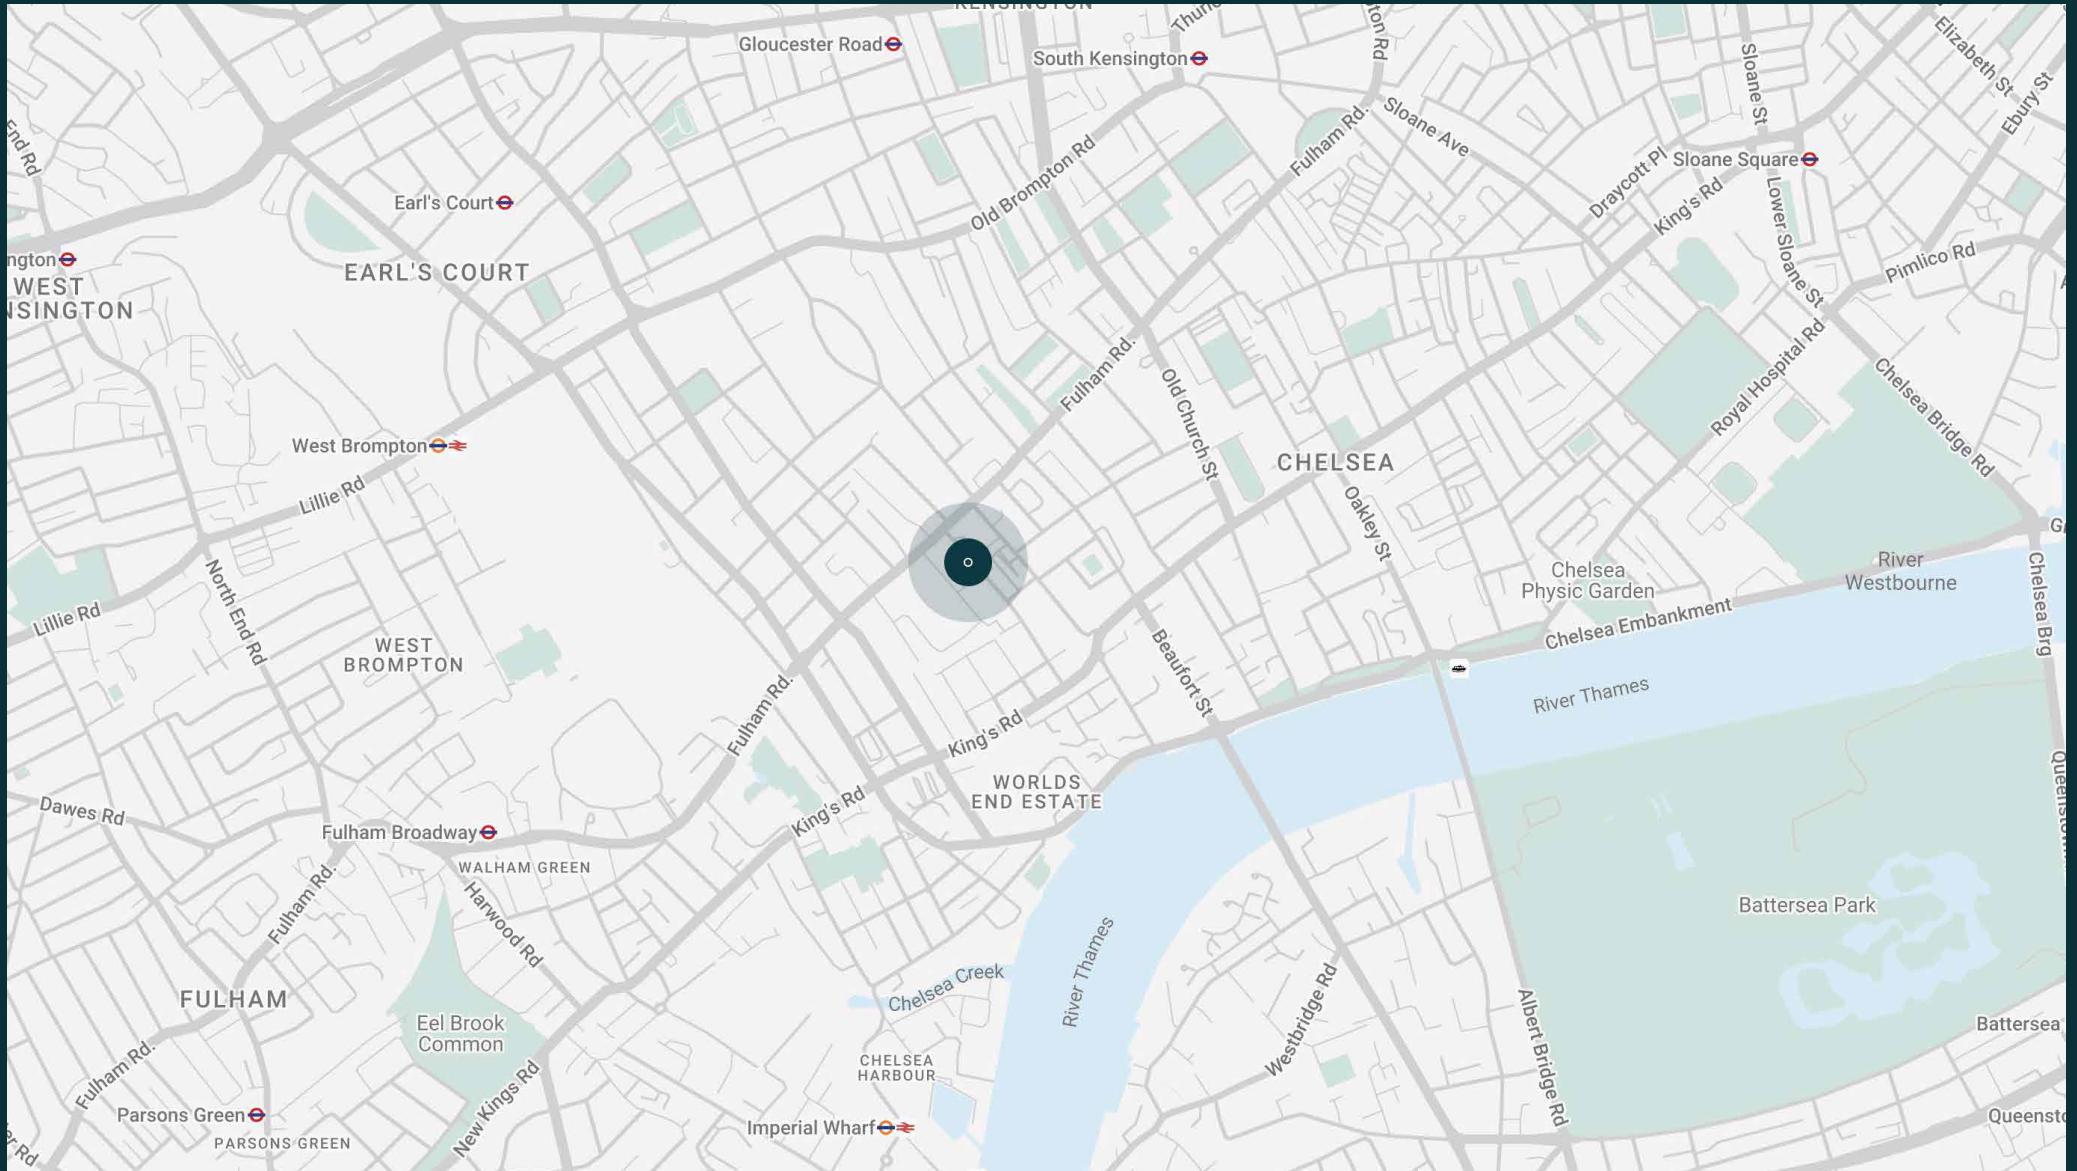

The neighbourhood

The best of both worlds awaits at Limerston Street – a peaceful spot just a stroll from the bustle of Fulham Road and the King's Road. Work up a sweat with a vinyasa flow yoga session at Triyoga, browse the boutiques of the King's Road, caffeinate over brunch at Bluebird, or tuck into a hearty meal at Beaufort House. It's a short wander north to the museums, or if you want to turn down the temp, stretch your legs and head towards Hyde Park or the river for a scenic stroll.
